RETIRED OFFICERS NEED WORK.

Relegation to Inactivity Believed to Be Responsible for Early Deaths in Army and Navy.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.) WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Army and navy officers on the retired list are worrying over the fate which seems to await their associates soon after they become inactive. It may be said that a superstitious belief has taken hold, and it would not be surprising should an agitation be started which would result in Congress considering the situation to determine whether it would not be better to assign to technical work retired army and navy officers, where civilian clerks and young-

BRYAN'S SILVER WEDDING.

Sick Headache And Indigestion

The Former Is Very Frequently Caused By the Other.

The pneumo-gastric nerve connects the stomach region directly with the brain, and when the stomach is out of order the head is almost certain to be affected through reflex or sympathetic nervous irritation.

The headache of dyspepsia and indigestion is of every variety from the quietest and least defined to the most acute pain. Sometimes the whole mass of the brain seems racked with anguish; at others, the ache is confined to the back or front part of the head. The first form is usually of a confused character, and is often accompanied by dizziness of vision, and a mild vertigo, or so-called "rush of blood to the head."

The majority of people regard this headache as a separate disease, instead of a symptom of stomach and digestive trouble, which it usually is; and they attempt to treat it separately, and make the mistake of endeavoring to obtain relief through the use of headache powders, tablets, pills, and the use of which is extremely dangerous, as many of them contain such powerful depressant drugs as acetanilid, phenacetin, antipyrine, caffeine, etc., which depress the heart, brain and nerve centers, and lower arterial pressure; and many a person with a weak heart has become dangerously ill shortly after taking one of these headache remedies. They also interfere with the digestive processes, and actually make the dyspepsia worse than before.

In order to get rid of the headache of indigestion—and most headaches are caused by stomach trouble—one should endeavor to reach and remove the cause, and the headache effect will soon be relieved.

STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS do not cure the symptoms; they cure the cause of the headache, which permanently removes the symptoms. They digest every atom of food in the stomach, cure all forms of stomach trouble, and the headache, and every other disagreeable symptom and untoward effect is quickly gotten rid of.

Don't make the mistake of trying to cure your dyspeptic or nervous headache through the use of headache powders, tablets, etc. Use common sense, good judgment, and one of two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and you will be agreeably surprised at the rapidity with which the headache will be relieved and cured simultaneously with the relief and cure of the stomach disturbance.

Purchase a package from your druggist today for 50 cents, and send us your name and address, and we will forward you a trial package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Building, Marshall, Mich.

Bombay India, is now one of the cheapest ports in the world. This has been brought about by dock construction and improvements effected at a cost of $8,000,000. A further outlay of $15,000,000 is to be made for a new harbor.

Brazil is a good field for the work of more American planters, if properly worked. At present they only reap 8 per cent of the imports, whereas they could reap 60 per cent. They want places of small size, and light weight, even though less durable because of the costly transportation from Europe. The United States American makes have the benefit of the 20 per cent tariff preferential allowed the United States. The demand for ordinary grand piano, is all $175.

The cocoa industry of Ecuador is rapidly developing, and there is much need suitable for the export. Guayaquil received 4,717,557 pounds last half of 1909 against an increase of 4,618,178 pounds over the previous year.

In Swatow, China, has concrete houses several centuries old. Building with walls of concrete is an innovation here. It was first introduced by a French priest who built a chapel of that material. The old buildings are strong and durable.

Scientific forestry in Germany raises the average yield of wood per acre from twenty cubic feet in 1530 to 1250 cubic feet today. In the last four years, the money forest receipts have increased sevenfold, and yet the forests are in better condition than ever before.

In connection with the international exhibition to be held in Turin, Italy, in 1911, the Chamber of Commerce there has announced that it intends (1905) "to be assigned to the invention, discovery, or contrivance of a process, method, apparatus, or other activity which in practice prove advantageous to the national economy." The Bureau of Manufactures has issued a pamphlet containing number of copies of the conditions available for public use.

The demand in Manchuria for electric lamps is increasing very rapidly, which was started this year, still continues high, as the trade in them there has been very favorable. Russia is Manchuria's principal producer and exporter.

A house-to-house canvass in France, by an American sales agent, has resulted in orders for (the models) American domestic refrigerators, has resulted in many sales. The average retail price is $15, and the cost of manufacture is $10.

Bagdad, Persia. Imports $7,000,000 worth of cotton goods yearly, nearly all from Great Britain and Belgium. The value of exports of carpets and prints could be sold there.

Speaking of local politics, we have no doubt that it will soon become general.

Let us all emulate the State of Minnesota, which honored a good man while he was alive.

Owing to the constant influx of new people, Los Angeles is a hard town for the politician to handle.

The man who predicted an earthquake in Sicily for Wednesday was busy checking up his calculations when last seen by the bartender.

Sir Gilbert Parker has written a new book which he calls "Northern Lights." Does Sir Gilbert realize that somebody is likely to call him a liar?

"That doctors lie is not to be disputed" declares a Hoosier writer. They do, thank heaven. Were they to tell the truth we would all die of fright.

We are informed that 15,000 Riffs have joined the Moors. We don't exactly know what Riffs are, but we are quite sure the Moors need them.

Speaking of the predictions that the world is to come to an end, we may say that it comes to an end every minute. Every minute a man dies.

Women talk too much and think too little; they overdo and undercook, but still we love them, and it would be hard to get along without them.

Mrs. Cook refuses to speak for publication concerning the North Pole controversy. It was to be expected that Dr. Cook would have that kind of a wife.

"The Bi-Centennial of Johnson" that we hear so much about refers to Samuel and not to Jack Johnson, although there are more people who know of Jack.

As he commended with the immemorial silence away out there in the cold at the North Pole, Dr. Cook must have felt more like a Democrat than ever.

In the Hudson celebration in New York the parade was composed almost wholly of Swedish and Irish societies. And still we are called Anglo-Saxons.

After having made a careful study of Miss Christobel Pankhurst's portrait, we are free to say that she is almost too good looking to be successful as a suffragette.

A Sunday-school superintendent has resigned because prohibition is a failure in Alabama. Thus does the demon rum continue its devilish work of disorganization.

In the play of "Du Barry," now on the local boards, a pretty actress appears before the audience in bed. The fact that the actress is pretty is what makes the scene interesting.

Of course we are finding out lots of new things, but there are several old questions that have never been settled. For instance, Who struck Billy Patterson? How old is Ann? and why is a Democrat?

"Americans are coming more and more to appreciate the value of pamphlets," asserts a Down East editor. There ought to be some value to pamphlets, that's a fact—there are so many of them.

Perhaps it is something in the quality of American air that causes the dirigible balloon to be less successful here than it is in Germany. And then, again, it may be because old Count Zeppelin is not here to do the steering.

It seems that "Boat Mate" Earle—not E. Too-plous—has left the country bearing a strong resemblance to Whitcomb Riley's friend, Charlie Burke, "wid a bran new shave upon him and the phewhakers off his face."

IS THE PRESS IN FETTERS?

A professional writer (we do not know whether he was afflicted with cacoethes scribendi or an itching palm for the so-much-per-line to be had for his article, or merely a desire to make a sensation) recently prepared for one of the yellow magazines of the country an article on the press. The matter was a broad and general, almost indiscriminate, arraignment of the newspapers of the country as being subservient to influences not for the public good. The article has been pretty freely copied, pretty generally quoted from, and has produced some impressions on very soft minds. The perpetual Presidential candidate, William J. Bryan, shows the effect of deep indentations in the pulpy matter beneath his cranium produced by the article. Probably the motive of reproducing it in the Commoner was the same as that which lay at the bottom of its first production in the magazine, and also of its more or less complete reproduction in many periodicals, would-be competitors of the daily press.

Now readers of the daily press who are not like young robins sitting unfledged in the nest, with gaping red throats waiting for some creature to come along and drop something palatable into their mouths, know that all sorts of influences underlie the publication of all sorts of publications. This is not only true of the dailies, but of the weeklies, monthlies and quarterlies. Fundamentally, the purpose of nearly every publication, in America and out of it, is the same as that which accounts for the appearance of the Commoner, of the magazine which publishes the article we are referring to, and for the writing of the article. That purpose is to make money. The way of accomplishing this purpose is as various as the various minds which control the publications. It depends upon two or three faculties or qualities of human nature. It depends upon the honesty, upon the intelligence, upon the courage and the interests of the publisher.

We propose to confine our consideration to the daily press, as that was the object of the attack. The various daily publications of the world are known broadly under the general term newspapers. The newspaper which is conducted by broad intelligence and business shrewdness is true to its name. The gathering and writing and printing and circulating of the news is the proper function of a newspaper. If it is conducted by minds broadly intelligent and shrewd from the business point of view it will reproduce the news that comes to its office, in the first place with truthful accuracy, in the second place with discriminating judgment as to the relative value of the various items of news, and lastly with some attention to the artistic presentation of the facts at hand. The daily publication, whether in village, town, city or metropolis, whatever the scope of the field in which it operates and whatever that of the columns in which the news is presented, which understands that this is the purpose of printing a paper and that these are the ways which lead to success, will present to its readers all the news important to them which its columns will carry and it can obtain. Any paper conducted on these principles and by these methods will surely succeed in due proportion to its opportunities. You cannot keep down a paper of this type with any amount of obloquy, abuse or misrepresentation you can heap upon it. The people of the country want the news, all they can get of it, in as ample form as possible and with as much pen art in the presentation of it as can be had. The people want all the news. Each person does not want it all, but in the aggregate the members of every community do want all the news. One person cares nothing for sports, but everything for market news. A society woman probably spends little time over the business department of the paper, but much over social events. A boy cares little about the New York stock market, but everything about the latest baseball record. The real newspaper in appropriate departments presents all the news of these various departments it can obtain as accurately as diligent, trained, intelligent reporters can get at the facts.

Parallel with the presentation of the news lies the policy of the paper. In politics one paper is Republican, another Democratic, and so on to the end of the political subdivisions of the community. It is difficult for human nature to be always fair to the other side. Questions of politics as well as of religion and other subdivisions of human opinion will bias the mind of the best man, and editors and newspaper writers are only human beings. But the paper which presents matters connected with politics as well as those connected with religion, the temperance movement, the various reforms, with the least bias and prejudice is the paper that will obtain the largest circulation in its community. Newspaper publishers are not usually taken from asylums for the weak-minded nor from crazy houses. They usually have a pretty shrewd notion of which side of the broad butter lies on, and as far as human frailty will permit they give the people the news known to be desired. A good newspaper will not suppress political news because it is against the party for whose principles it stands. A good newspaper will not stand for candidates for office nor for office-holders because they belong to the party whose principles the paper stands for, but rather will be the first to brand the incompetent or dishonest office-seeker or office-holder for the party's sake as well as for that of the community.

Of course the article referred to here attacks the daily newspaper on the ground of bias in financial and industrial affairs. The suggestion all through is that the interests of the great body of the public are not considered by the newspaper because it is controlled by the large financial and industrial interests supposed by the writer of this article to be antagonistic to the general public interest. As to this, the view of the author is correct, it is the most unhappy and dangerous notion the country could be in. Capital and labor cannot be antagonistic one to the other without ruin to both. The friendliest, most sympathetic relations between the two elements of our pursuits are essential to the well-being of capital quite as much as to the well-being of labor. Here again we encounter human nature with all its frailties and narrowness of view. Undoubtedly there are persons with capital employed in industry who are not always or entirely fair to those who do the work. On the other hand, there are persons who have nothing but their time, intelligence, skill and muscle to sell who are quite as greedy of gain as the capitalist. Shylock that ever demanded his pound of flesh. On one side this spirit is just as wrong as it is on the other, and just as prevalent.

Here again we have lines of cleavage along which newspaper policies split, just as they do on politics or religion. We have newspapers (sometimes very falsely so called) whose policy is to defend the employed against the employer. These papers are often exceedingly biased, narrow, prejudiced, full of bigotry of an unjust spirit and unfortunately defiant even of the laws of the land. There are no other newspapers in the United States published in any interest so prejudiced, so unfair, so openly defiant of law, as this class of "organ." But we are speaking here of newspapers and not of "organs."

Now there are newspapers openly, honestly, courageously published in the defense of certain interests. They are not all dailies. There are weeklies and monthlies published whose business is the promotion of the welfare and the defense of the rights of railroads, of banks, of farmers, carpenters, miners and what not. There is always room for discriminating care in reading all enunciations made by these publications because of their known inherent leanings in favor of the cause in which they are published. This is so, and yet the publisher may be entirely honest and may try with all the care at his control to present matters fairly. There are papers, like the Wall Street Journal, openly, honestly, published in the interest of the finance and great industrial interests of the country. It makes no bones about the policy which it pursues. It may be biased at times, could hardly help being so, and yet unless it presents its facts fairly, truthfully, its influence in the world would be absolutely nil. It may present its side of the news and leave those whose interests differ from that of its clientele to present to the world the views on the other side. This is no more dishonest in the special journal than it is in the lawyer who takes a client's case and leaves his opponents on the other side to attack his facts and array their facts in opposition to his. The publisher of the Wall Street Journal may be just as conscientious, as truthful and honorable as the highest type of lawyer in the United States.

"I HAVE COME FROM THE POLE. I HAVE BROUGHT MY STORY AND MY DATA WITH ME. I AM HERE TO PRESENT A CLEAR RECORD OF A PIECE OF WORK OVER WHICH I HAVE A RIGHT TO DISPLAY A CERTAIN AMOUNT OF PRIDE."
—DR. COOK

When it comes to the newspaper pure and simple it is absolutely absurd, and as false as absurd, to set up the contention that it is run in the behalf of any interest other than that of giving to the general public all the important news of the world as accurately and fairly as the facts could be obtained. If there is bias on the part of any such newspaper it is found in its editorial columns, and there it is subject to attack from a hundred papers whose views are different and interests other than those of the paper in question.

THE TORIERS' DILEMMA.

The Conservative party in Great Britain is certainly in an awkward position. Lloyd George's budget bears awfully hard upon the Conservatives. They are represented by the House of Lords, which is almost exclusively theirs. The friction between this hereditary legislative chamber and the popular branch of Parliament, the House of Commons, is something very severe. Lloyd George's bill is practical confiscation of property, and the property for the most part belongs to the Conservatives. The old-age pension bill is responsible for a good deal of the new taxation, and the Lords, in a moment of drowsy inadvertence, passed the bill providing for these pensions. They were probably too sleepy to realize that the money to meet these pensions must come from taxation, that everything likely to yield a penny in the pound had already been taxed, and that a new shilling in the pound or thereabouts must be added to meet these new expenditures.

The presentation of the budget awoke even the drowsy members of the House of Lords. They were the first to come out of the nightmare, and his denunciation of the new tax scheme was loud enough to be heard from one end of England to the other. He proclaimed Lloyd George's plan a revolution.

The House of Lords would like to throw out the budget, but will they dare to do it? In the first place, it would be what George's tax bill is, a revolution. Since the days of Charles I. not to go back farther, the levying of taxes has rested with the House of Commons. All financial measures must originate in that house, and the House of Lords has so far never found courage enough to lock horns with the popular branch of Parliament and dispute even feebly any taxation proposition that might be presented. What the lords fear is that if they face this revolutionary act and throw out the budget the extreme radicals will raise a loud roar, as they have on former occasions, "Down with the House of Lords." The hereditary branch of the English Parliament is a fossil. It is regarded by a good many Britishers as a survival of the unfittest. The average Lord Tom Noddy has not a personality that is very impressive. The Lord Dunderbary type of legislator is rather a joke. The lords know this very well, and are hesitating about taking the revolutionary step involved in rejecting the budget and facing the loud cry, "Down with the House of Lords."

They are rather shrewdly attempting to force a general election on an entirely different issue. They are dodging the direct question between rejecting the budget and having their own right to sit as law-givers by hereditary authority attacked. The new issue on which they would go before the country is Joseph Chamberlain's tariff reform. It seems like a drowning man grasping at a straw. The Conservative party in Great Britain is composed very largely of Cobdenite free-traders, and when it comes to disturbing the treasured prejudices of two generations lodged in the head of British gentlemen and noblemen, the task is about as hopeless as the cleansing of the fabled stables of Aegreus and calls for a Hercules to perform the task. Unfortunately there is no Hercules in sight. Lloyd George has more brains, courage, shrewdness and politics under his hat than about half of the hereditary house of Parliament.

Mr. Arthur Balfour, former Prime Minister and the acknowledged leader of the Conservatives, went a week ago to Birmingham, and there under the shadow of Highbury, where Mr. Chamberlain was sitting listening to the speech by telephone, Mr.

Balfour outlined the new policy of the Conservative party. He was very frank in his presentation of the conditions that confront Great Britain. According to his views it is not simply the Conservative party, but all Great Britain, that must contemplate an awkward dilemma and decide on which horn they will attempt to take a rest.

The British statesman opened his address by referring to the budget, with its "dangerous tendency toward aliphosph communism," and then went on to outline the conditions in the country generally. He said: "The country's condition is not now and never again can be what it was in the halcyon days of British industrial supremacy. There is nothing, happily, more certain than that in many of the greatest industries Great Britain is no longer first among her equals, not even second among her equals, while in some directions she has to rejoice in holding third place." He refers to the great strides being made in America and Germany in industrial matters and to the immense amount of British capital seeking more favorable investment in these foreign countries than it can find at home. He pointed out that capital is not so altruistic as men like Lloyd George would have it to be, that the budget proposals of the little Welsh statesman will inevitably have the effect of driving much more British capital into foreign fields to seek investment where confiscation is not practiced under the laws of the other countries. As this capital is withdrawn from investments in Great Britain, the British workman will find it continually more difficult to earn salt for his porridge, even if he had the porridge. The protective tariff laws of Germany and the United States make it difficult for British manufacturers to enter there into successful competition with the home product. On the contrary, Great Britain lies wide open to be invaded by any flood of surplus products the protected countries may find it convenient to dump there in times of stress.

Having thus outlined the present and probable future to the great industrial masses of Birmingham, Mr. Balfour yielded the platform to the Right Honorable J. Austin Chamberlain, son of his great father, who sat at Highbury listening to the former Prime Minister's address. Mr. Chamberlain read a letter from his father which came to the pitch of the matter as follows: "I hope the House of Lords will see the way to force a general election, and I have no doubt of what the country's answer will be."

We are told by the English papers that Balfour's address was listened to with the greatest attention and evoked a good deal of enthusiasm. The cheers that greeted Mr. Chamberlain's letter, we are told, were tremendous. There were dissenting voices in the assembly, but not many, and the meeting adopted a resolution which pledged the party to Mr. Balfour's leadership.

The resolutions closed with these words: "Recognizing that the financial proposals of the government are intended to postpone indefinitely the policy of tariff reform, this meeting declares its determined adherence to that policy as a necessary means of increasing employment at home and strengthening the empire at large."

UNCLE WALT, WARBLER.

BY UNCLE WALT, MASON OF EMPORIA.

The stars were glimmering overhead when the farmer rose from his downy bed; he yelled, as he rapped on the bedroom door: "Get up, boys, up! It is nearly four! When I was as young and as spry as you, I always got out of bed at two! Boys now-a-days aren't worth a hang! I never saw such a lazy gang; it's four o'clock and you're still in bed, and the cows not milked and the hogs not fed! I reckon you'd sleep all day and more, if I didn't break down the bedroom door! Get up! get up! It will soon be dawn, and the best of the morning then is gone!" The boys obeyed him and quit their smores, and donned their raiment and went outdoors. The farmer sat by the kitchen range, where his wife was working, and said: "It's strange, how the boys are crazy to quit the farm—the city life has a wondrous charm. They have lots to eat and a place to sleep, and

Driver Drives to El Monte and Surrenders.

Declares He Fired to Save His Own Life.

Shooting Follows Dispute Over Property.

A quarrel over property rights between the Perry and Lummer families, who live near El Monte, came to a violent end, when Fred Lummer, 37, shot and almost instantly killed John Perry, a negro. The slayer at once drove to El Monte and gave himself up to Constable Burdick. The officer said his prisoner is a city and county inmate.

Frederick Lummer, who was locked up in the County Jail yesterday on a charge of murder.

He told the action of the District Attorney. It is not yet certain whether a murder complaint will be filed against him.

Lummer is a cripple, and deficient in speech. The victim was a strong and healthy negro. The dispute was over a piece of property belonging to the Perry family, which Lummer claimed as his own.

Lummer's family had been served with notice of ejectment, to take effect later, and when they saw Perry enter the land, they fired. Perry was shot in the arm and ran out to meet him.

Perry had four Mexicans with him, and a woman. The elder Lummer ran to his car, shouting: "I have always been a friend of yours, and now you are killing me!"

There was some further heated conversation, which ended in young Lummer firing a shot at the advancing negro. An arrow hit him in the chest, and he fell. The father of the slayer, who was a negro, was also shot and fell.

The sheriff's inquest will be held at El Monte today.

When seen at the County Jail yesterday afternoon, Lummer asserted that he acted in self-defense. He did not appear alarmed over the possible outcome of the coroner's inquest, but was concerned over the grief of his father, mother and sisters.

His reputation has not been of the best, but he has been helping his father on their farm. His right leg is withered. The fact that he had a revolver in his pocket yesterday morning will count against him.

The sheriff's inquest will be held at El Monte today.

ACROSS THE PACIFIC.

American locomotives, cars and rails are exclusively used on the Chinese Railway, China. Chinese capital constructed the road, using Japanese contractors.

The soy bean of China is competing in Europe with American cottonseed products. The Bureau of Manufactures, Washington, D. C., has compiled for free distribution on application, a group of consular reports and statements regarding this matter.

Japan's trade with the United States in 1938 total year amounted to $2,843,348, as follows (Bureau of Statistics):

Imports from Japan ..... $78,222,723

Exports to Japan ..... $1,801,613

Japan's trade gain for the year ..... $173,390,110

Our principal purchases of Japan was raw silk, $44,839,836, and Japan's principal purchase of us was cotton, $10,614,238, followed by mineral oil, $4,520,577; electrical machinery, $1,175,345; and wheat flour, $1,068,178.

Out of gross receipts of $1,068,178, in 1938, the Shantung Railway of China showed a profit of $127,117, an increase of $106,789. The railway is owned by a German company. On such a showing as this it is really a "gold mine."

We get an idea of the diversity of Chinese trade by noting that the road carries hard coal, briquettes and coke, beans, metal goods, machinery, wood and its manufactures, kerosene (17,734 tons), salt, cotton, yarn, grain, fruits and straws, paper, sorghum, sugar, crockery, straw, braids and matting.

The total area of waste lands in Japan proper amounts to 32,123,383 chō (about 87,381 acres). The areas of the west and dry fields in Japan at the end of 1938 were 2,549,765, and 2,648,586 chō (about 6,374,364 and 6,621,465 acres, respectively).

Rice cultivation causes the predominance of wet fields, and is the leading crop in size, followed in order as named, by wheat, large beans, millet, sweet potatoes, buckwheat, red beans, Indian corn and Irish potatoes.

Japanese emigration to the plantations of Aso Paulo State, Brazil, was not a success. They were not adapted to the local conditions, and nearly all of the 788 have left the plantations for the cities.

Japan's mineral output in 1938 was of the value of $1,543,000, a decrease of $1,235,000 from that of 1937. Coal led with $592,700; followed by copper, $11,591,800; petroleum, $3,127,700; silver, $2,152,800; gold, $2,000,000; iron, $1,543,000; and sulphur, $1,000,000. These are the Japanese official statistics—Consular Report.

The Manila Electric Railroad and Light Company during the past fiscal year carried 10,365,613 passengers at an average fare of 4.5 cents, and an average cost of 2.5 cents per passenger. The total revenue was $23,000,000, and the cost $18,000,000 for operating expenses.

The Japan-Korea Gas Company has bought 10,000,000 cubic feet of gas from the Seoul Gas Company, says the London and China Telegraph.

A new industry in Hongkong is a shoe factory, where footwear for Chinese is made by modern machinery. It is a rate unprecedented for Hongkong. It is contemplated to also make European boots and shoes. A factory for making "Pantana" hats is also about being started; also in course of installation, machinery for the wholesale manufacture of brasswork.

Orange county has about as many different kinds of soil as there are in the map, everything from sea to mountain top, including peat, sandy loam, silt and gravel. While the Carnival Committee came to the aid of the county, the county committee came to the aid of the carnival.

This float came down the street in a view of the carnival. The float was made of celery, while the big wheel was trimmed in Egyptian corn. It there been a Don Quixote in the crowd, he would have charged this windmill, would have been handed a bunch of celery fresh from the field.

Celery brings a yearly crop of $200,000 each year. Other crops that make up the $9,000,000 production of the county each year are oranges, lemons, and other fruits. The county is a land of plenty, and the carnival is a sight to behold.

DESPERATE FLIGHT. FAMISHED BUT STILL AHEAD.

Willie Boy and Captive Are Yet Uncaptured.

Four Officers Sent Forward to Cut Them Off.

Pursuit Slow, But Surrender
Is Inevitable.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

RIVERSIDE, Sept. 30.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Though undoubtedly almost famished for lack of food and water, the Indian murderer, "Willie Boy" and his girl captive are still keeping up their desperate flight toward Twenty-nine Palms, where the officers closing in on them. The two are believed to be now about sixty-five miles northeast of Banning, in the San Bernardino Mountains, on the down slope toward Twenty-nine Palms.

Evidence accumulates that they are in great need of food, and it is thought to be only a question of time when the young buck must surrender to his pursuers.

Chief Wilson's posse includes Ben DeCrescenzo, Wall DeCrescenzo, J. N. Lavren, Charles Ritchie, Joe Toulaine, Segundo Chino and Henry Paine. The two latter are experienced Indian trackers and are leading the way in the search.

Deputy Constable Hauerman of Banning, who was in Riverside about three days ago, brought word that four men have been seen about the old "Willie Boy" place. He can get to Twenty-nine Palms. Three others are following close on his trail. The region through which the Indians and girl are fleeing is almost inaccessible, and progress is slow. At one point they back-tracked and crossed the trail of the posse, but a short time after the latter had passed.

Fight Averted at San Bernardino Over
Estate of Ben Davies, Well-Known Horseman.

SAN BERNARDINO, Sept. 30.—On the eve of a legal fight between brother and sister, over the estate of the late horseman, Ben Davies, a compromise was effected, which was presented by the attorneys to the Superior Court today, and formally approved. By it, Mrs. Lela Davis Whitcomb, mother of the deceased, and his wife, Mrs. Lela Davis, have agreed to settle the estate of Ben Davies, valued at over $100,000, is allowed to go as part of the estate of the deceased.

When Davies died the appraisers listed about $100,000 in personal property of the wife, and the claim was made that these animals had been left to her by the horseman long before his death. Had this contention stood the case would have been cut off from sharing in most of her father's estate.

With the situation now on file the only property recognized as belonging to Mrs. Davies consists of two driving horses, a pair of vases and two Jersey cows, valued at $25,000. The stock is valued at $12,000.

According to the children of the family, they heard a sound like a muffled shot shortly after their father left, but at that time believed it was caused by some object falling to the floor.

The authorities think that some enemy of Ah Louie probably fired the shot for revenge.

Ah Louie left his home but a short time before the shooting, for his Arroyo Grande ranch. The burglar took gold coins and jewelry valued at about $5,000. A bank book on a local bank, with several checks, worthless to the burglar, also was taken.

For rest and natural hot baths go to Wheeler's Hot Springs, Ventura Co.

THIEF'S SMOOTH SWINDLER.

Hattie Schiller, cashier at a branch postoffice, was yesterday confronted by a well dressed stranger who asked for "top-sider" worth of stamps and tendered a $20 gold piece in payment. After she had made the change the stranger by dexterous movements of his fingers thrust the gold piece into his pocket unseen by the woman. He then insisted that she had not given him all his money. He pointed to the store where the postoffice is located, but before the situation was explained to him the stranger gave back all the change and stamps and asked for his $20, which was given him. He hastily departed and is believed to have left here on the steamer for Los Angeles.

Capt. Charles H. Davis, a veteran of the sea, and Atlantic and Pacific, died here yesterday. He was local representative of the Board of Marine Underwriters of San Francisco and for ten years a New York, coming here twenty-two years ago.

HAD NOT ENJOYED A MEAL IN YEARS.

Arkansas Farmer Follows Advice of Cooper and Gains
Fifteen Pounds in a Few Weeks.

A. D. Henry, a prominent farmer living on Rural Route No. 5, Jonesboro, Ark., in a statement given for publication, tells a story that makes interesting reading for persons who suffer from stomach trouble. Mr. Henry says:

"For six years I was a chronic sufferer from stomach trouble. In all that time I did not eat a meal to enjoy it. No matter what I ate it caused pain and distress. Food laid in a hard lump upon my stomach. I lost flesh and strength and was unable to find relief. I suffered night and day—was robbed of my sleep and rest, and arose in the morning as tired as when I went to bed. I was completely run down, and derived no benefit from any medicine I took."

"One day while in town my druggist recommended Cooper's New Discovery. I had noticed several articles in the newspapers regarding this man Cooper's work in the larger cities, and decided to give his medicine a trial. Its effect surprised me. Before I had taken all of the first bottle I felt wonderfully improved. The pain and distress had left me, my appetite was good, my bowels were moving regularly and naturally, and I began to sleep soundly at night."

"I continued the treatment, taking several more bottles, and in six weeks' time I felt like a new man, fully restored to health and strength. I gained fifteen pounds while taking the Cooper medicine. I cannot say enough in praise of Cooper's New Discovery—brought new life to me."

The theory of L. T. Cooper is based upon common-sense reasoning. When asked recently why his medicine is so successful, he replied: "My New Discovery is successful because it corrects the stomach. My theory is that few can be sick if the digestive apparatus is working properly. It naturally follows that few can be well with a poor digestion. I know from experience that most of the tired, half-sick people that are so common nowadays have half-sick stomachs. Put the stomach in shape and nature does the rest. The result is general good health. My medicine does this."

Cooper's New Discovery is a boon to stomach sufferers. It is sold in Los Angeles at the Owl Drug Store.

The Cabbie's Mistake.

A New Yorker, while visiting Paris this summer, had occasion to summon a cabman whom he desired to take him with dispatch to the Rue Milton.

The cabman drove a long distance and then deposited his fare, who, upon alighting, found to his great indignation that he was in the Rue Byron—at the other end of the city. He thereupon launched into a Paragon of the stupidity of cabmen in general, and those of the French capital in particular.

"Pardon me, sir," interposed the cabman, meekly. "Just a little mistake in the post, sir; that's all!"—[Exchange.]
